

Penalties and enforcement

Penalties apply under the Public Health (Tobacco) Act 2008.

Penalties

The table on the following pages sets out some key penalties for individual retailers and corporations for non-compliance with certain sections of the Act.

On-the-spot fines of up to $5500 may be issued by NSW Health Authorised Inspectors for a number of offences under the Act, including:

- failure to notify NSW Health about tobacco retailing activities
- failure to comply with the display restrictions of tobacco products, non-tobacco smoking products, smoking accessories, e-cigarettes and e-cigarette accessories.
- selling tobacco products, non-tobacco smoking products, smoking accessories, e-cigarettes and e-cigarette accessories from more than one place on the premises
- failure to comply with a requirement or direction of a police officer or NSW Health Authorised Inspector

For a complete description of the full range of penalties under the Act, refer to the Public Health (Tobacco) Act 2008 and the Public Health (Tobacco) Regulation 2022.

Enforcing the legislation

NSW Health Authorised Inspectors across NSW closely monitor compliance with the Public Health (Tobacco) Act 2008 and the Public Health (Tobacco) Regulation 2022.

Retail outlets are randomly visited and prosecutions have been made against those who have been found to sell tobacco products to people under the age of 18. Businesses and individuals that have been prosecuted have included employers and staff working in newsagents, tobacconists, milk bars, supermarkets and petrol stations.

Authorised Inspectors conduct random inspections and will also follow up complaints from members of the public about suspected breaches by retailers.

Authorised Inspectors have the power to:

- enter and inspect tobacco retailing premises
- take photos, films, audio, video or other recordings
- take samples of any items for analysis or to use as evidence
- require records to be produced for inspection
- examine, inspect and copy records or documents
- in some instances, seize tobacco products

Retailers may ask an Inspector to produce his or her certificate of authority.

Continuing offences

For some provisions of the Public Health (Tobacco) Act 2008, a continuing state of affairs may be created, which provides for penalties to be enforced for each day the offence continues. For example, having more than one vending machine in contravention of section 12 of the Act gives rise to a maximum penalty of up to $220,000 for each day the offence continues, in addition to the original penalty of up to $55,000 (in the case of a corporation).

Number of offences

A person or company which has been convicted of two offences against the same provision of the Act or Regulation within any three year period on the same business premises may be banned from selling tobacco products for three months. Three offences within any three year period may result in a 12 month ban.

Penalties for prohibited retailers

Engaging in tobacco retailing while prohibited carries a penalty of $55,000 for an individual for a first offence or $110,000 for a second or subsequent offence, and $110,000 for a corporation's first offence or $220,000 for a second or subsequent offence. This offence will also result in the immediate forfeiture and destruction of any tobacco products on the premises for sale.
