This State Health Plan sets out the vision for the next stage of the reform journey so NSW Health can keep providing 'the right care, in the right place, at the right time' for everyone in NSW.

THE NEXT STEPS

The NSW State Health Plan sets out a clear framework for the future direction for our public health system across the State.

We'll now work together to ensure the directions and strategies set out in our Plan are implemented and we monitor and report our progress in achieving our vision for the future.

All parts of NSW Health have a role to play in leading change:

- Local Health Districts, Specialty Health Networks and NSW Ambulance, through front-line service delivery and clinician, patient and community engagement.
- Our Pillars the Agency for Clinical Innovation, the Clinical Excellence Commission, Cancer Institute NSW, NSW Kids & Families, Bureau of Health Information and the Health Education and Training Institute - through providing expert advice and guidance to our Districts and Networks in consultation with clinicians.
- Key Agencies NSW Health Pathology, Office for Health and Medical Research, Health Infrastructure, HealthShare NSW and eHealth NSW - who provide statewide services in support of high quality, value for money patient care.
- Ministry of Health as system manager, responsible for purchasing services and monitoring performance to deliver improved health outcomes for the people of NSW.

A NSW State Health Plan Evaluation and Monitoring Framework will be developed, assigning lead organisations with responsibility for each key priority area. These responsibilities will be managed through the NSW Health Performance Framework.

The NSW Health Performance Framework is the key policy document that sets out how the performance of public sector health services in NSW are monitored and assessed by the NSW Ministry of Health, including through Service Agreements and Compacts.

In the spirit of flexible, patient-centred care, the Plan will be reviewed regularly to capture changes in the healthcare landscape and to reflect our strategies to manage these changes in consultation with those best able to make decisions - those closest to the patient.

NSW STATE HEALTH PLAN

TOWARDS 2021

A MESSAGE FROM THE MINISTER FOR HEALTH

Healthcare is complex and dynamic. The demands on our health system and staff keep rising every year, while people's expectations about their own health and how they can, or should, access care is also shifting. We need to work within a whole of government context to look at ways we can address health inequalities and prioritise services for those with the greatest need within our community.

In 2011 the NSW Government began a process of change to build a 21st century healthcare system to really deliver on our promise of 'Right Care, Right Place, Right Time'. We've released a number of major planning strategies that have improved funding, lifted performance outcomes, reduced unwarranted variation in care, and boosted spending on infrastructure and technology. We are also taking decision-making as close to the patient and those working on the ground as possible.

But I now believe it's time to do more to meet emerging health challenges and to help ensure the long term sustainability of our healthcare system while always retaining our core focus on the needs of the community and our patients and their carers.

This State Health Plan is a framework for change, shaping what we need to achieve in our hospitals, for our workforce, in research and innovation, integrated care, eHealth and infrastructure and, most importantly, in keeping everyone healthy.

Clearly this Plan represents the work of a lot of people both inside and outside NSW Health, and I want to thank everyone who has helped us get to where we are today and where we want to be by 2021.
